The presentation may be formal or informal, depending on the case study itself.Drawing conclusionsOnce the research body is established, it is time to draw conclusions from the case study. As with all social science studies,<sup>4</sup> findings should not necessarily be taken at face value, but they are essential in advancing the body of knowledge in a given field. To that end, they can be evaluated by gathering new material and presenting it as from other scholars in the field.

Graves Disease LG is a 34-year-old woman who presented to her primary care physician (PCP) 6 months ago with symptoms of palpitations, heat intolerance, anxiety and tremor. He was diagnosed with hyperthyroidism as a result of Graves' disease and started to be given propylthiouracil (PTU) 100 mg orally 3 times a day. After several months, LG managed to reach a euthyroid state and her PTU dose was reduced to GL.
